

What is Domestic Violence?

Abuse is a pattern of verbal, emotional, physical, or sexual behaviours used by one person in order to gain power and control over another person. Domestic violence refers to abuse that occurs in the context of an intimate relationship or family setting.

Domestic violence is committed by both women and men, however women experience violence differently.

- Violence against women is more frequent, severe, and more likely to be life threatening than violent acts against men.
- Physical abuse of women is more likely to result in the need for medical treatment.
- Women are more likely to experience violence from intimate partners in their homes.
- Women are at a greater risk of sexual violence.
- The fear of violence is more prevalent in women, potentially preventing them from being fully active members in their communities.

Statistics on Domestic Violence in Canada

- Over the past 5 years, 8% of women report that they have experienced violence by an intimate partner.
- On average, 73 women are murdered by their husbands every year. This is more than three times the number of men who are murdered by their wives.
- Only 37% of female victims of spousal violence reported incidents to police.
- 11% of women who reported at least 1 incidence of spousal violence in the previous year went to a shelter or transition house.
- Since 2000, the rate of spousal violence against women has decreased while the rate of violence against women by their boyfriends has increased.
- The most likely victims of domestic violence include:
 - Women under the age of 25
 - Aboriginal women
 - Women in lower-income households.

Signs of Abuse

These types of behaviour in a relationship are abusive:
